Improvement of quality of filtered water by selecting the filter media materials

Abstract

This research deals with manufacturing of purification filter model with dimensions of (60*60*220) cm from steel frame covered it by plastic sheet and supplying it by a certain water pump to operate the physical model, and find out the quality of filtered water by using the required tests. And by improvement of filtered media using different types of filter materials to propose the optimal filter media.